We file this complaint pursuant to Mo. Rev. Stat. § 105.957 alleging that Eric Greitens' campaign committee, Greitens for Missouri, has violated Missouri campaign finance law, Mo. Rev. Stat. § 130 and Article VIII of the Missouri Constitution.

On October 28, 2021, the Campaign Legal Center filed a complaint with the Federal Election Commission ("FEC") alleging violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act by Greitens for Missouri, Eric Greitens, and his federal campaign committee, Greitens for U.S. Senate. The FEC complaint is attached.<sup>1</sup>

As described in more detail below, the conduct described in the FEC complaint also violates Missouri campaign finance law. Specifically, Greitens for Missouri violated its disclosure obligations at Mo. Rev. Stat. § 130.041 by failing to report in-kind contributions made to Greitens for U.S. Senate.

If the Commission finds probable cause to believe that Greitens for Missouri has violated Missouri campaign finance law, then pursuant to the February 13, 2020 Consent Order between the Commission and the committee, Greitens for Missouri may be required to pay the remaining $140,087 fine associated with its prior violations.<sup>2</sup>

Greitens for Missouri's Unreported In-Kind Contributions to Greitens for U.S. Senate

Greitens for Missouri made up to $100,000 of in-kind contributions to Greitens for U.S. Senate in the form of a website, payments to Greitens' Senate campaign manager, and disbursements to consulting firms and for digital advertising made in connection with Greitens' Senate candidacy. None of those contributions were reported on Greitens for Missouri's reports filed with the Commission.

For example, in 2020, Greitens for Missouri paid a total of $18,750 to the web design firm Abrot Creative for "web services" ($9,500 on May 14, 2020,<sup>3</sup> $4,750 on June 19, 2020,<sup>4</sup> and $4,750 on July 31, 2020<sup>5</sup>) around the same period that Greitens launched an updated version of his website, www.ericgreitens.com.<sup>6</sup> When the website launched in May 2020, it included the disclaimer "Greitens for Missouri," and the statement "Website created by Abrot Creative."<sup>7</sup>

On or around March 22, 2021, the date that Greitens publicly announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate,<sup>8</sup> the disclaimer on Greitens' website was changed to read "Paid for by Greitens for U.S. Senate," and the banner image changed to reflect Greitens' Senate logo, but the website was otherwise largely unchanged: the front page of the website used the same background videos featuring Greitens and used the same professional profile photos of the candidate,<sup>9</sup> and contained the same content in the "About Eric Greitens" section.<sup>10</sup>

Greitens for U.S. Senate's first report filed with the FEC disclosed an $18,000 in-kind contribution from the candidate, dated March 23, 2021, described as "in-kind: website."<sup>11</sup> However, given that Greitens for Missouri spent roughly $18,000 developing the website, and that the website content was largely unchanged after control was transferred to Greitens for U.S. Senate, there is reason to believe that Greitens for Missouri—rather than Eric Greitens himself—actually made the $18,000 in-kind website contribution to Greitens for U.S. Senate. There is no record of Greitens having purchased the website from Greitens for Missouri.

Additionally, during the same period that Greitens began publicly acknowledging that he was exploring a U.S. Senate run, he was using Greitens for Missouri resources to pay for a number of services apparently connected to his Senate candidacy. Greitens was widely discussed as a potential Senate candidate throughout 2020,<sup>12</sup> but Greitens publicly acknowledged that he was “testing the waters” for a federal candidacy in a March 2, 2021 interview.<sup>13</sup> For example:

- Weeks before Greitens publicly confirmed that he was contemplating a Senate run, Greitens for Missouri reported a $1,200 payment for “strategic planning” on February 11, 2021 to Octavian Group, an LLC created by Dylan Johnson, who was later announced as Greitens’ Senate campaign manager.<sup>14</sup> Greitens’ state committee also paid $1,200 to Johnson’s firm for “strategic planning” on December 31, 2020.<sup>15</sup> Greitens for Missouri had remained active in the years since Greitens left office, but these were its first disbursements for “strategic planning,” and its first payments to Johnson’s firm. Greitens was not seeking state office at the time; the only reasonable inference is that the payments to his campaign manager’s firm for “strategic planning” were in connection with Greitens’ soon-to-be-announced federal candidacy.
- One week after Greitens publicly acknowledged that he was testing the waters for a Senate run, on March 10, 2021, Greitens for Missouri paid $7,500 for “media services” to a firm that specializes in booking clients on Fox News.<sup>16</sup> On March 22, 2021, Greitens appeared on Fox News’s Special Report with Bret Baier, where he publicly announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate.<sup>17</sup> The only reasonable inference is that the $7,500 “media services” expenditure was made for the purpose of booking the television appearance where Greitens would announce his candidacy.

<sup>13</sup> In a March 2, 2021 interview, Greitens responded to a question about a potential U.S. Senate run by stating, “I am evaluating right now what I am going to be doing this year,” that “voters deserve to have leaders in the US Senate who are going to fight for them,” and that a Senate candidacy is “something that I am certainly going to keep the door open to, and take a look at, because the people of Missouri deserve a fighter. 3-2-21 Hour 1: Eric Greitens, Marc Cox Morning Show (Mar. 2, 2021), <https://omny.fm/shows/the-marc-cox-show-podcast/3-2-21-hour-1-eric-greitens>.

- Other Greitens for Missouri resources also appear to have been used for Senate campaign expenses. For example, four months before Greitens formally declared his candidacy, on November 20, 2020, Greitens for Missouri incurred a $47,222 expenditure to Push Digital LLC for “digital media.”<sup>18</sup> Throughout 2020, Greitens also paid tens of thousands of dollars to his future campaign manager, to public relations firms, and to media consulting firms, and spent tens of thousands more on digital advertising.

As described in the attached FEC complaint, Greitens for U.S. Senate, Greitens for Missouri, and Greitens violated federal campaign finance law by, among other things, failing to report or misattributing these contributions, and by unlawfully using state funds in a federal race.<sup>19</sup>

These transactions also violate Missouri campaign finance law.

By Greitens for Missouri transferring its website and paying for services rendered to Greitens for U.S. Senate, it made “contributions” to the federal committee, as that term is defined under Missouri law.<sup>20</sup> A Missouri campaign committee must file periodic reports with the Commission that disclose, among other things, the date and amount of all contributions to other committees, “including a candidate committee controlled by the same candidate.”<sup>21</sup>

Greitens for Missouri violated these state reporting requirements by failing to disclose contributions made to Greitens for U.S. Senate.<sup>22</sup> As noted above, such violations may also run afoul of the February 13, 2020 Consent Order between the Commission and the committee.

<sup>19</sup> See Ex. A (FEC Complaint). Specifically, Greitens for Missouri violated federal law’s straw donor ban by making the $18,000 in-kind website contribution in the name of Eric Greitens, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(i); Greitens violated the ban by knowingly permitting his name to be used to effect the contribution, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(i); and Greitens for U.S. Senate violated the straw donor ban by knowingly accepting a contribution from Greitens for Missouri made in the name of the candidate, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(iv). Greitens for U.S. Senate violated 52 U.S.C. 30104(b) by failing to disclose the receipt of most of these in-kind contributions, and by misattributing a contribution to Greitens that had in fact come from Greitens for Missouri. Greitens violated federal law’s ban on transferring nonfederal funds from his state campaign committee to his federal campaign committee, 11 CFR § 110.3(d), and violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125(e)(1)(A) and 11 C.F.R. § 100.72(a) by spending non-federal funds in connection with his federal candidacy.

<sup>20</sup> A “contribution” includes “a payment, gift, loan, advance, deposit, or donation of money or anything of value for the purpose of supporting or opposing the nomination or election of any candidate for public office.” Mo. Rev. Stat. § 130.011(12). “A contribution of anything of value shall be deemed to have a money value equivalent to the fair market value.” Id. “Contribution” also includes a “Payment by any person, other than a candidate or committee, to compensate another person for services rendered to that candidate or committee.” Id. § 130.011(12)(b).

<sup>22</sup> Additionally, these contributions would appear to violate the prohibition on a candidate committee making a contribution to another candidate committee, “including any candidate committee . . . established under federal law.” Mo. Const. Art. VIII, § 23.3(4).

COMPLAINT

1. Publicly available evidence indicates former Governor of Missouri and current Senate candidate Eric Greitens illegally spent more than $100,000 from his gubernatorial campaign to pay the start-up expenses of his Senate candidacy. The evidence also indicates Greitens filed a report with the Commission falsely describing some of that spending as a personal contribution from himself to his Senate campaign.

In July 2019, Greitens for Missouri amended its statement of organization to describe Greitens as a 2020 gubernatorial candidate,<sup>13</sup> apparently in order to retain its status as an “active” campaign committee.<sup>14</sup> However, Greitens stated publicly in 2020 that he was not running for governor.<sup>15</sup>
10. On April 2, 2020, the Associated Press reported:

[Greitens] won’t run for governor this year, at least not as a Republican. The filing deadline was Tuesday . . . Local media have suggested he could be a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 2022 if incumbent Republican Roy Blunt retires.

He certainly has the look of a politician once again.

Twice this week, Greitens made public appearances dropping off protective masks to ease the shortage caused by the coronavirus — on Monday at a fire house in St. Louis and on Tuesday with police in Kansas City. He has done some recent interviews, been increasingly active on social media, and offered political commentary on Fox News on March 10, the day of the Missouri presidential primary.

14. On November 6, 2020, the Kansas City Star reported:

The election year is not behind us yet, but political professionals are already peering past 2020 to 2022, when Missouri will be electing a U.S. Senator. According to the St. Louis Business Journal, the usual suspects are likely to be looking at the seat held by Republican Sen. Roy Blunt.

Chief among them, writes political analyst Dave Drebes, is former governor Eric Greitens, who resigned in 2018 after allegations of sexually violent misconduct and a felony prosecution in St. Louis that ended in a plea deal. His exit also averted probable impeachment by the Missouri General Assembly.

“In Jefferson City, there are always rumors about Greitens trying to make a comeback. Some think he might primary Blunt in 2022,” Drebes wrote. “Greitens has done nothing to tamp that suspicion.”<sup>27</sup>

15. Greitens for Missouri reported a $47,222 payment to Push Digital LLC on November 20, 2020 for “digital media,” according to the committee’s reports filed with the Missouri Ethics Commission.<sup>28</sup> The disbursement did not correspond to any publicly-available digital ads attributed to Greitens for Missouri, including any ads run by Greitens’ social media pages.<sup>29</sup>

I do think Missouri needs strong leadership, and that voters deserve to have leaders in the U.S. Senate who are going to fight for them. As you know, Roy Blunt has been out fighting with Mitch McConnell, he’s been criticizing the President of the United States over what happened on January 6, he’s been criticizing the President of the United States for not coming to Joe Biden’s inauguration, where obviously everyone in Missouri saw Roy Blunt there, so it’s something that I am certainly going to keep the door open to, and take a look at, because the people of Missouri deserve a fighter.”<sup>32</sup>

CAUSES OF ACTION

I. Greitens for Missouri Made, and Greitens for U.S. Senate Accepted, An Illegal and Unreported Contribution

23. There is reason to believe that Greitens for U.S. Senate disclosed an in-kind contribution from the candidate that actually came from Greitens' state campaign committee, in violation of the committee's reporting obligations at 52 U.S.C § 30104(b), and that Eric Greitens violated the prohibition on transferring assets from a state committee to a federal committee at 11 C.F.R. § 110.3(d). Moreover, there is reason to believe that Eric Greitens, Greitens for Missouri, and Greitens for U.S. Senate violated the straw donor ban at 52 U.S.C. § 30122.

24. A “contribution” includes “any gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money or anything of value made by any person for the purpose of influencing any election for Federal office.”<sup>41</sup> “Anything of value” includes all in-kind contributions.<sup>42</sup>
25. A candidate’s campaign committee must report the identity of all persons who contribute more than $200.<sup>43</sup>
26. FECA provides that “[n]o person shall make a contribution in the name of another person or knowingly permit his name to be used to effect such a contribution, and no person shall knowingly accept a contribution made by one person in the name of another person.”<sup>44</sup>
27. Commission regulations prohibit a candidate from transferring non-federal funds from their state committee to a federal committee.<sup>45</sup> The Commission has emphasized that this regulation prohibits all “transfers of cash or other assets from state campaign committees to federal campaign committees.”<sup>46</sup>
28. Greitens launched an updated version of his website, www.ericgreitens.com, in May of 2020, with the disclaimer “Greitens for Missouri.”<sup>47</sup> The website stated it was “created by Abrot Creative,” to which Greitens for Missouri paid $18,750 for “web services.”<sup>48</sup>

29. On or around March 22, 2021, the date that Greitens publicly announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate,<sup>49</sup> the disclaimer on Greitens’ website was changed to read “Paid for by Greitens for U.S. Senate,” and the banner image changed to reflect Greitens’ Senate logo, but the website was otherwise unchanged: for example, the front page of the website used the same background videos featuring Greitens, used the same professional profile photos of the candidate, and contained the same content in the “About Eric Greitens” section.<sup>50</sup>
30. Greitens for U.S. Senate’s first report filed with the Commission disclosed an $18,000 in-kind contribution from the candidate, dated March 23, 2021, described as “in-kind: website.”<sup>51</sup>
31. Given that Greitens for Missouri spent roughly $18,000 developing the website, and that the website content was largely unchanged after control was transferred to Greitens for U.S. Senate, there is reason to believe that Greitens’s state campaign committee—rather than Eric Greitens himself—actually made the $18,000 in-kind website contribution to Greitens for U.S. Senate.
32. Therefore, there is reason to believe that Eric Greitens violated the ban on transferring non-federal funds from his state campaign committee to his federal campaign committee, 11 CFR § 110.3(d), and that Greitens for U.S. Senate violated its reporting obligations at 52 U.S.C § 30104(b) by attributing a contribution to Eric Greitens that it knew had come from Greitens for Missouri.

<sup>51</sup> Greitens for U.S. Senate, 2021 April Quarterly Report, supra note 40 (disclosing the candidate’s $18,000 in-kind contribution).

33. Moreover, there is reason to believe that Greitens for Missouri violated the straw donor ban by making a contribution in the name of Eric Greitens, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(i); that Eric Greitens violated the ban by knowingly permitting his name to be used to effect the contribution, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(i); and that Greitens for U.S. Senate violated the straw donor ban by knowingly accepting a contribution from Greitens for Missouri made in the name of the candidate, 52 U.S.C. § 30122, 11 C.F.R. § 110.4(b)(1)(iv).

II. Eric Greitens Unlawfully Used His State Committee to Finance “Testing the Waters” Expenses, and Greitens for U.S. Senate Failed to Report Contributions Received

34. There is reason to believe that Greitens for Missouri unlawfully financed “testing the waters” activities for Greitens’ federal candidacy, and that Greitens for U.S. Senate failed to report those expenses, either as expenditures or as in-kind contributions.
35. An individual becomes a “candidate” if “he or she receives contributions or makes expenditures in excess of $5,000 or gives consent to another person” to do so on his or her behalf.<sup>52</sup> However, Commission regulations create a limited exception to the definitions of “contribution” and “expenditure” that allow an individual to explore the feasibility of a federal campaign, i.e., to “test the waters,” without becoming a candidate under FECA.<sup>53</sup>
36. Section 100.131 provides that “[p]ayments made solely for the purpose of determining whether an individual should become a candidate are not expenditures,” but “[i]f the individual subsequently becomes a candidate, the payments made are expenditures subject to the reporting requirements of the Act.”<sup>54</sup> When an individual becomes a candidate, all funds received or payments made in connection with “testing-the-waters” activities become contributions or expenditures subject to FECA’s reporting requirements, “and shall be reported . . . in the first report filed by such candidate’s principal campaign committee.”<sup>55</sup>

37. Only funds permissible under FECA may be used for testing the waters activities.<sup>56</sup> Federal candidates also may not solicit, receive, direct, transfer or spend funds in connection with either federal or non-federal elections unless the funds comply with the Act's federal contribution limits, source restrictions, and reporting requirements.<sup>57</sup>
38. Greitens began exploring a federal candidacy no later than early 2021. In a March 2, 2021 interview, Greitens clearly indicated he was testing the waters for a federal candidacy, when he responded to a question about a potential U.S. Senate run by stating, “I am evaluating right now what I am going to be doing this year,” that “voters deserve to have leaders in the US Senate who are going to fight for them,” and that a Senate candidacy is “something that I am certainly going to keep the door open to, and take a look at, because the people of Missouri deserve a fighter.”<sup>58</sup>
39. During this same period, Greitens reported used Greitens for Missouri resources to pay for services apparently connected to his Senate candidacy. For example:
- a) Shortly before Greitens publicly confirmed that he was contemplating a Senate run, Greitens for Missouri reported a $1,200 payment for “strategic planning” to Octavian Group, an LLC created by Dylan Johnson, who was later announced as Greitens Senate campaign manager.<sup>59</sup> Greitens’ state committee also paid $1,200 to Johnson’s firm for “strategic planning” on December 31, 2020.<sup>60</sup> Greitens for Missouri had remained active in the years since Greitens left office, but these were its first disbursements for “strategic planning,” and its first payments to Johnson’s firm. Greitens was not seeking state office at the time; the only reasonable inference is that the payments to his campaign manager’s firm for “strategic planning” were in connection with Greitens’ soon-to-be-announced federal candidacy.

- b) One week after Greitens publicly acknowledged his testing the waters status, on March 10, 2021, Greitens for Missouri paid $7,500 to a firm that specializes in booking clients on Fox News.<sup>61</sup> On March 22, 2021, Greitens appeared on Fox News’s Special Report with Bret Baier, where he publicly announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate.<sup>62</sup> The only reasonable inference is that the $7,500 “media services” expenditure was made for the purpose of booking the television appearance where Greitens would announce his candidacy.

40. There is additionally reason to believe that Greitens for Missouri paid for earlier testing the waters or campaign expenses. For example, four months before Greitens formally declared his candidacy, on November 20, 2020, Greitens for Missouri reported a $47,222 payment to Push Digital LLC for “digital media.”<sup>63</sup> Throughout 2020, Greitens also paid tens of thousands of dollars to his future campaign manager, to public relations firms, and to media consulting firms, and spent tens of thousands more on digital advertising.<sup>64</sup>

41. Because the available evidence indicates that Greitens for Missouri made disbursements for Greitens' testing the waters activities, there is reason to believe that Greitens for U.S. Senate violated 52 U.S.C. § 30104(b) by failing to report in-kind contributions from the state committee. Additionally, because Greitens for Missouri's funds consisted of contributions that exceeded federal limits and came from prohibited sources like corporations, there is reason to believe that Eric Greitens violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125(e)(1)(A) and 11 C.F.R. § 100.72(a) by spending non-federal funds in connection with his federal candidacy.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

42. Wherefore, the Commission should find reason to believe that Eric Greitens, Greitens for U.S. Senate, and Greitens for Missouri violated 52 U.S.C. § 30101 et seq., and should conduct an immediate investigation under 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(2).
43. The Commission should seek appropriate sanctions for any and all violations, including civil penalties sufficient to deter future violations and an injunction prohibiting the respondents from any and all violations in the future, and should seek such additional remedies as are necessary and appropriate to ensure compliance with the FECA.
