1 NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO INTERVENE

2 The League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), National Association
3 for the Advancement of Colored People, NAACP California/Hawaii State Conference, 4 and NAACP Los Angeles Branch (together, NAACP) (collectively, Proposed 5 Intervenor-Defendants) respectfully request an order granting them leave to intervene 6 as additional defendants in this action as a matter of right under Federal Rule of Civil 7 Procedure 24(a)(2) or, in the alternative, granting them permission to intervene under 8 Rule 24(b).

9 Proposed Intervenor-Defendants are some of our nation's leading Latino and 10 Black advocacy organizations. They seek to intervene because the Federal 11 Government's demands flout the law, disregard the realities of election administration, 12 and defy basic standards of decency—all while voting is underway. The Federal 13 Government's eleventh-hour suit, if successful, would have devastating consequences, 14 not only for the communities and U.S. citizen voters that Proposed Intervenor-15 Defendants serve, but for the election systems administered under state law. Requiring 16 Defendants to comply with these demands would cause profound harm and, indeed, 17 have already created confusion, disrupted an ongoing voting process, and deterred 18 eligible voters from participating. While in more ordinary circumstances, Proposed 19 Intervenor-Defendants could proceed on a less expedited basis, this suit and its 20 requested relief threatens California's election system and its voters and requires 21 immediate action.

22 The bases of this Motion are more fully set forth in the accompanying 23 Memorandum of Points and Authorities, which is supported by the Declarations of Juan 24 Proaño, Tyler Sterling, and Anna Baldwin, along with a Proposed Answer, each of 25 which is incorporated by reference. Prior to filing, and as described in the Declaration 26 of Anna Baldwin, counsel for Proposed Intervenor-Defendants contacted counsel for 27 the Plaintiff and attorneys representing each Defendant. Counsel for the Plaintiff

1 indicated their position as follows: “The United States opposes this request. It is 2 premature. Defendants should be properly served, and a judge should be assigned to the 3 case.” Counsel for Defendants the State of California and Secretary of State Shirley N.
4 Weber took no position on the motion. Counsel for Defendant Los Angeles County 5 Registrar-Recorder Dean C. Logan also took no position on the motion.

6 Proposed Intervenor-Defendants acknowledge that this Motion is filed prior to 7 conferral by phone or in person with opposing counsel for Plaintiff the United States, 8 pursuant to Local Rule 7-3. Proposed Intervenor-Defendants nonetheless respectfully 9 request the Court consider this Motion. As set out in the Declaration of Anna Baldwin, 10 Proposed Intervenor-Defendants attempted to schedule such conferral prior to filing this 11 motion. But as described in the Complaint and the attached exhibits, Plaintiff’s conduct 12 required a more expeditious response, given the urgency of the ongoing election, the 13 Federal Government’s representation that it would seek “Emergency Relief,” ECF No.
14 1-3, and that Local Rule 7-3 exempts applications under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15 65 for temporary restraining orders or preliminary injunctions.

16 In the alternative, should the Court determine that the Motion is premature or 17 further conferral is required, Proposed Intervenor-Defendants respectfully request that 18 that the Court hold the Motion in abeyance and order that all required conferral take 19 place by 5:00 PM Pacific time on October 16, 2026, and that Proposed Intervenor-20 Defendants file a notice informing the Court of the parties’ positions following such 21 conferral.

INTRODUCTION¹

The Federal Government, acting through the U.S. Department of Justice (USDOJ) and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS), has initiated this case, demanding, 19 days before Election Day, that the State of California and Los Angeles County comply with its lawless demands to circumvent state and federal law governing voter eligibility, voter list maintenance procedures, and mail ballot rules. These demands have no basis in law or fact and would cause unconstitutional disenfranchisement of eligible voters. Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 554 (1964) (citation omitted) (describing the “constitutionally protected right to vote, and to have [] votes counted”). This type of action is well in excess of any Congressionally-delegated authority the executive branch may have in federal elections. The states and Congress share responsibilities for regulating election administration, but the executive does not have free-ranging authority in this sphere. See U.S. Const. art. I, § 2, cl. 1; U.S. Const. art. I, § 4, cl. 1. The Constitution “assign[s] no role at all to the President” in election administration. League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Exec. Off. of the President, 818 F. Supp. 3d 34, 53 (D.D.C. 2026) (LULAC II), judgment entered, No. 25-cv-0946, 2026 WL 880056 (D.D.C. Mar. 31, 2026).

Proposed Intervenor-Defendants seek to intervene to protect the rights of voters, including their members, against this type of federal overreach and resulting disenfranchisement. Proposed Intervenor-Defendant the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) is the nation’s largest and oldest Latino civil rights

¹ Consistent with Rule 24(c), Proposed Intervenor-Defendants have attached a Proposed Answer to their motion. However, if granted intervention, Proposed Intervenor-Defendants intend to file a Rule 12 Motion before filing a responsive pleading in this case. See, e.g., Kern Cnty. Farm Bureau v. Badgley, No. CVF 025376 AWI DLB, 2002 WL 34236869, at *19 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 10, 2002) (holding Rule 12 motion filed after intervention was granted is timely where proposed answer accompanied prior motion to intervene).

1 organization in the country and it works to advance the voting rights, economic 2 conditions, and social welfare of the Hispanic community. LULAC has over half a 3 million members nationwide, including over 40,000 in California. Proposed Intervenor-
4 Defendants the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, NAACP
5 California/Hawaii State Conference, and NAACP Los Angeles Branch (together, 6 NAACP) is the nation's oldest civil rights organization with nearly 200,000 members 7 nationally and nearly 12,000 members in California. The NAACP is dedicated to 8 achieving equity, political rights, and social inclusion by advancing policies and 9 practices that expand human and civil rights, eliminate discrimination, and accelerate 10 the well-being, education, and economic security of Black people and all persons of 11 color. Each Proposed Intervenor-Defendant is a membership organization whose 12 mission and work centers the promotion of civic engagement, including through voting.
13 Because Proposed Intervenor-Defendants' interests and their members are directly 14 impacted by this litigation, they have a right to intervene pursuant to Federal Rule of 15 Civil Procedure 24(a)(2). In the alternative, Proposed Intervenor-Defendants seek 16 permissive intervention under Rule 24(b)(1).

17 BACKGROUND

18 This case is the Federal Government's latest and most transparent gambit to 19 undermine a state's existing electoral process and interfere with administration of an 20 ongoing election. Over the last two years, the executive branch has continually sought 21 to exceed the bounds of its limited authority to enforce federal election statutes, 22 frequently usurping the election regulation and administration authority that the 23 Constitution assigns primarily to the states. In March 2025, the President issued an 24 executive order that purported to require, among other things, that the Election 25 Assistance Commission take action to require additional documentation for voters to 26 register using the federal registration form and to prohibit states from counting ballots 27 received after election day. Exec. Order No. 14,248, 90 Fed. Reg. 14005, 14006-07,

§ 2(b), 2(b)(iii) (Mar. 25, 2025) (2025 Elections EO). In March 2026, the President issued an executive order on mail voting that directed DHS to create lists of citizens eligible to vote using information from U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, the Social Security Administration, and “other relevant Federal databases.” Exec. Order No. 14,399, 91 Fed. Reg. 17125, 17125, § 2(a) (Mar. 31, 2026) (Mail Voting EO). That executive order also required the United States Postal Service to implement rules to redesign ballot envelopes and send ballots only to voters who appear on certain lists. See Ballot Mail for Federal Elections, 91 Fed. Reg. 54966 (Aug. 26, 2026). And over the last thirteen months, USDOJ has sued 30 states and the District of Columbia, seeking to compel them to produce unredacted versions of their state voter registration lists. See United States v. Hobbs, No. C25-6078-KKE, 2026 WL 2833713, at *1 n.3 (W.D. Wash. Sep. 22, 2026) (listing cases). This is part of a larger USDOJ effort to obtain voter information from the states and share that information throughout the executive branch. See Common Cause v. U.S. Dep’t of Just., No. CV 26-1352, 2026 WL 3033772, at *5-7 (D.D.C. Oct. 9, 2026) (describing USDOJ’s policy of obtaining and sharing voter lists).

The courts have overwhelmingly rejected the Federal Government’s efforts. See id. at *36 (setting aside and vacating USDOJ’s policy); Hobbs, 2026 WL 2833713, at *1 n.3 (cases in which courts have dismissed USDOJ efforts to compel unredacted voter lists); LULAC II, 818 F. Supp. 3d at 53 (enjoining portions of 2025 Elections EO); League of Women Voters of Mass. v. Trump, No. 1:26-CV-11549-IT, 2026 WL 2620871, at *1 (D. Mass. Sep. 4, 2026) (enjoining portions of Mail Voting EO), stay denied sub nom. U.S. Postal Serv. v. California, 26A305, 2026 WL 2687160 (U.S. Sep. 14, 2026). The Government’s efforts to interfere with election administration and restrict voting have persisted. As recently as July 17, 2026, the Secretary of DHS threatened to withhold funds and possibly prosecute state officials unless they “scrub” their voter rolls in line with DHS’s demands, after apparently running several states’

1 voter rolls through the SAVE program.² And DHS’s investigations unit recently put out 2 a request for information to find a contractor who can “secure delivery of publicly 3 available voter registration files and voter history files to support Homeland Security 4 Investigations (HSI) fraud detection and data segmentation activities.”³ The Federal 5 Government’s baseless claims that large numbers of non-citizens are present on voting 6 rolls have repeatedly been proven false. In Nevada, for example, DHS initially 7 identified up to 15,903 such individuals but later reduced that number to 185. Nevada 8 officials then confirmed that all 185 are citizens.⁴

9 A. Procedural Posture

10 The United States filed its Complaint in this matter on October 15, 2026, alleging 11 a single count under the Supremacy Clause, and requesting that this Court, among other 12 things, “[i]ssue a preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining California from 13 tabulating in federal elections vote-by-mail ballots received from” over 20,000 14 individuals that it claims to have identified. Compl. at 14, ECF No. 1. This relief, which 15 lacks a basis in law, would disenfranchise eligible U.S. citizen voters in Los Angeles 16 County. Both the filings from the United States and their correspondence with 17 California election officials represent an intention to seek preliminary relief at the outset 18 of this case. See Compl. ¶ 63, ECF No. 1; Ex. C, Declaration of Anna Baldwin, at 2.
 19 Proposed Intervenor-Defendants LULAC and NAACP seek timely intervention as 20 defendants to vindicate their interests in this matter.

2 in California and 1,000 in Los Angeles County.

3 LEGAL STANDARD

4 The federal rules provide two pathways for a nonparty to intervene in a pending 5 action.

6 First, Rule 24(a) entitles a nonparty to intervene in an action as a matter of right 7 when: (1) the motion to intervene is timely filed; (2) the proposed intervenors have “an 8 interest relating to” the subject matter of the action; (3) the proposed intervenors are “so 9 situated that disposing of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede [their] 10 ability to protect [that] interest”; and (4) the proposed intervenors’ interests are 11 inadequately represented by the existing parties to the suit. Fed. R. Civ. P. 24(a); see 12 also Berger v. N.C. State Conf. of the NAACP, 597 U.S. 179, 190 (2022). The Ninth 13 Circuit interprets the requirements of Rule 24(a) “broadly in favor of intervention.” W.
14 Watersheds Project v. Haaland, 22 F.4th 828, 835 (9th Cir. 2022) (quoting Citizens for 15 Balanced Use v. Mont. Wilderness Ass’n, 647 F.3d 893, 897 (9th Cir. 2011)). “In 16 addition to mandating broad construction, [] review is guided primarily by practical 17 considerations, not technical distinctions.” Id. A court must allow any party to intervene 18 who meets the four criteria set forth by the Federal Rules. Arakaki v. Cayetano, 324 19 F.3d 1078, 1083 (9th Cir. 2003).

20 Second, Rule 24(b) provides that, even if a nonparty cannot intervene as a matter 21 of right, a court may permit intervention when the movant has “a claim or defense that 22 shares with the main action a common question of law or fact” and intervention will not 23 “unduly delay or prejudice the adjudication of the original parties’ rights.” Fed. R. Civ.
24 P. 24(b). “A motion for permissive intervention pursuant to Rule 24(b) is directed to the 25 sound discretion of the district court.” San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. U.S. Dist. Ct.-N.
26 Dist. (San Jose), 187 F.3d 1096, 1100 (9th Cir. 1999). In considering motions to 27 intervene, courts “take all well-pleaded, nonconclusory allegations in the motion to

1 intervene, the proposed complaint or answer in intervention, and declarations 2 supporting the motion as true absent sham, frivolity[,] or other objections.” Sw. Ctr. for 3 Biological Diversity v. Berg, 268 F.3d 810, 820 (9th Cir. 2001).

4 ARGUMENT

5 I. LULAC and NAACP are entitled to intervene as of right under Rule 6 24(a)(2).

7 LULAC and NAACP are entitled to intervene in this litigation because the 8 motion is timely; the organizations and their members have significant interests in the 9 case; those interests will be impacted by the outcome; and no other existing party 10 adequately represents those interests.

11 A. This motion is timely.

12 Whether a motion to intervene is timely is within “the sound discretion of the 13 trial court.” Alaniz v. Tillie Lewis Foods, 572 F.2d 657, 659 (9th Cir. 1978). Factors 14 courts consider include “the stage of the proceeding”; “prejudice to other parties”; and 15 “the reason for and the length of the delay.” Id. All of these factors support finding the 16 utmost timeliness here.

17 Proposed Intervenor-Defendants moved to intervene the very next day after the 18 filing of the Complaint, long before the case progressed beyond the initial stages. Equal 19 Emp. Opportunity Comm’n v. Fed. Express Corp., No. C94-790C, 1995 WL 569446, at 20 *5 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 8, 1995) (granting motion to intervene filed years into litigation 21 at summary judgment stage despite “substantial[] delay[]”). Although a judge has not 22 yet been assigned and Defendants have not yet filed a responsive pleading, neither is a 23 rationale to delay granting, or otherwise denying, Proposed Intervenor-Defendants’ 24 motion. See Washington v. U.S. Dep’t of Transp., No. 2:25-cv-00848-TL, 2025 WL 25 3023041, at *8 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 29, 2025) (granting motion to intervene where 26 defendants had not answered and no dispositive motions had been filed); see also W.
 27 States Trucking Ass’n v. Schoorl, No. 2:18-CV-1989, 2018 WL 5920148, at *1 (E.D.

Cal. Nov. 13, 2018) (finding no prejudice where party “sought to intervene [at] the very outset of litigation”). Accordingly, neither party will be prejudiced because no delay will result if Proposed Intervenor-Defendants’ motion is granted. Proposed Intervenor-Defendants’ motion is therefore timely.

B. LULAC and NAACP have significantly protectable interests related to this litigation.

This litigation is closely tied to Proposed Intervenor-Defendants’ organizational interests and the interests of the thousands of individuals who comprise LULAC’s and NAACP’s membership within Los Angeles County and the State of California. Under Rule 24(a)(2), “a prospective intervenor ‘has a sufficient interest for intervention purposes if it will suffer a practical impairment of its interests as a result of the pending litigation.’” Wilderness Soc’y v. U.S. Forest Serv., 630 F.3d 1173, 1179 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting California ex rel. Lockyer v. United States, 450 F.3d 436, 441 (9th Cir. 2006)). “Rule 24(a)(2) does not require a specific legal or equitable interest.” Id. (citing Fresno Cnty. v. Andrus, 622 F.2d 436, 438 (9th Cir. 1980)). “[I]t is generally enough that the interest is protectable under some law, and that there is a relationship between the legally protected interest and the claims at issue.” Id. (quoting Sierra Club v. EPA, 995 F.2d 1478, 1484 (9th Cir. 1993)). The Ninth Circuit has recognized that “[t]here is no doubt that the right to vote is a legally protected interest and voter disenfranchisement is a concrete and particularized injury.” Am. Encore v. Fontes, 152 F.4th 1097, 1111 (9th Cir. 2025).

Proposed Intervenor-Defendants have strong organizational interests that are closely related to this litigation. First, the organizations engage in robust non-partisan civic engagement and get-out-the vote programming. See Ex. A, Declaration of Juan Proaño ¶¶ 9-11 (Proaño Decl.); Ex. B, Declaration of Tyler Sterling ¶ 8 (Sterling Decl.). Second, the organizations have voter education programs to ensure that their members can access reliable information and exercise their right to vote. Proaño Decl. ¶¶ 10-11;

1 Sterling Decl. ¶ 8. Third, the organizations seek to protect their members’ right to vote, 2 especially because both organizations have members who face obstacles and challenges
3 in exercising that right. Proaño Decl. ¶ 20-25; Sterling Decl. ¶¶ 6-8, 15. For example, 4 both organizations’ members heavily use and rely upon mail ballots to participate in 5 California elections. Proaño Decl. ¶¶ 12-13; Sterling Decl. ¶ 15. These interests bear a 6 close relationship to the litigation because this matter directly implicates the type of get-7 out-the-vote programming the organizations will need to run for Los Angeles County, 8 the voter education information they will need to provide their potentially affected 9 members in Los Angeles County, and the voter protection programming they will need 10 to run for Los Angeles County. Proaño Decl. ¶¶ 10-12, 18-20; Sterling Decl. ¶¶ 11-12.

11 Additionally, Proposed Intervenor-Defendants’ members have protectable 12 interests related to this litigation because they are registered California voters in Los 13 Angeles County and their right to vote is at stake. Proaño Decl. ¶¶ 7, 12, 21-22, 24; 14 Sterling Decl. ¶¶ 4-5, 12, 14-15. These members registered to vote in accordance with 15 California law, made the required certifications of citizenship under penalty of perjury, 16 and received mail-in ballots, all in accordance with state and federal law. Since there is 17 no way for a voter to know if they are on the Federal Government’s “list,” this litigation 18 leaves every member uncertain as to the fate of their mail ballots. It also threatens to 19 prevent some of these members from having their ballots counted alongside other 20 eligible voters and subjecting them to unlawful proof of citizenship requirements. And 21 this list will undoubtedly intimidate voters from submitting their ballots at all for fear 22 that their ballots could possibly be segregated. Courts routinely find that these kinds of 23 interests are legally protectable and support intervention. See, e.g., Issa v. Newsom, No.
24 20-CV-01044-MCE-CKD, 2020 WL 3074351, at *3 (E.D. Cal. June 10, 2020); 1789
25 Found. Inc. v. Fontes, No. CV-24-02987-PHX-SPL, 2025 WL 834919, at *3 (D. Ariz.
26 Mar. 17, 2025).

C. This litigation will impact LULAC's and NAACP's interests.

This litigation directly impacts Proposed Intervenor-Defendants' organizational interests and the interests of their members. See supra Section I.B. Once a court finds that an intervenor has a significantly protectable interest, the court should have "little difficulty concluding that the disposition of the case may, as a practical matter, affect it." Citizens for Balanced Use v. Mont. Wilderness Ass'n, 647 F.3d 893, 898 (9th Cir. 2011) (citation omitted).

Proposed Intervenor-Defendants and their individual members' interests will also be impaired if some are unlawfully removed from the voter list, their ballots are segregated and not counted, or they are subjected to additional proof-of-citizenship requirements. Even for members who are not on the Federal Government's "list," Proposed Intervenor-Defendants and their members' interests are already impaired because their members reasonably fear rejection of their ballots and may feel compelled to forgo their mail ballot option in favor of in-person voting because of the uncertainty the Federal Government has created. The Federal Government seeks to control which voters may remain on California's voter rolls, which ballots get counted, and which steps voters must take to prove their citizenship. Such drastic alterations to California election procedures—sought at the eleventh hour—would have immense effects on Proposed Intervenor-Defendants' election-related work and their members' ability to vote. In particular, the Federal Government's requested relief would subject mail ballots to radically different treatment than in-person ballots, which would require Proposed Intervenor-Defendants to alter their voter education and engagement work and may dissuade their members and constituents from using mail voting. LULAC and its members are particularly likely to be affected because many of its members are naturalized citizens, the people most often misidentified as noncitizens because outdated government databases frequently have errant indicators of noncitizenship. Proaño Decl. ¶¶ 13, 21-24.

D. The current parties do not adequately represent LULAC's and NAACP's interests.

Neither LULAC's nor NAACP's interests are adequately represented by the existing parties. To support intervention as of right, it is enough that the "representation of [their] interest[s] 'may be' inadequate." Trbovich v. United Mine Workers of Am., 404 U.S. 528, 538 n.10 (1972) (emphasis added) (citation omitted). This is a "minimal" burden. Id.; see also Sagebrush Rebellion Inc. v. Watt, 713 F.2d 525, 528 (9th Cir. 1983). In assessing the adequacy of representation, courts consider "(1) whether the interest of a present party is such that it will undoubtedly make all of a proposed intervenor's arguments; (2) whether the present party is capable and willing to make such arguments; and (3) whether a proposed intervenor would offer any necessary elements to the proceeding that other parties would neglect." Citizens for Balanced Use, 647 F.3d at 898 (citation omitted). The "most important factor in assessing the adequacy of representation is how the [intervenor's] interest compares with the interests of existing parties." Citizens for Balanced Use, 647 F.3d at 898 (citation modified). Indeed, the Ninth Circuit frequently reverses denials of intervention where district courts strictly applied the adequacy of representation standard despite differing interests. See id. at 901 (reversing denial of intervention because the court could not "conclude that the [government party] will undoubtedly make all of [intervenors'] arguments"); see also Sw. Ctr. for Biological Diversity, 268 F.3d at 819, 823, 824 (reversing denial of intervention because "[t]he interests of government and the private sector may diverge" and, therefore, there was "sufficient doubt about the adequacy of representation") (citation omitted). LULAC and NAACP can easily satisfy the adequacy standard because they have distinct interests that diverge from—and, at times,

1 even conflict with—the interests of Defendants, who cannot as a result be expected to 2 make all of Intervenor-Defendants’ arguments.

3 First, LULAC and NAACP are organizations that represent and have thousands 4 of members who are themselves California mail-ballot voters in Los Angeles County, 5 whose ballots could be segregated and not counted because of the Federal 6 Government’s demands. There is a robust line of cases where district courts in this 7 Circuit have found that the interest in protecting individual voters’ rights is uniquely 8 held by private parties and not adequately represented by government defendants—even 9 where they may share the same objective. See, e.g., Donald J. Trump for President, Inc.
10 v. Cegavske, No. 2:20-CV-1445, 2020 WL 5229116, at *1 (D. Nev. Aug. 21, 2020) 11 (granting intervention under Rule 24(a) because government defendant did not 12 adequately represent private organization’s interests); Paher v. Cegavske, No. 3:20-CV-13 00243-MMDWGC, 2020 WL 2042365, at *3 (D. Nev. Apr. 28, 2020) (granting 14 intervention under Rule 24(a) even where intervenors shared the “goal of protecting the 15 all-mail election provisions” at issue). Thus, even though Intervenor-Defendants are 16 “on the same side” as Defendants in terms of the public interest, Issa, 2020 WL 17 3074351, at *3, the government’s public interest is not “identical to the individual 18 parochial interest” of LULAC and NAACP, Citizens for Balanced Use, 647 F.3d at 899 19 (citation omitted). For that reason, the rebuttable presumption that existing parties will 20 adequately represent the interests of intervenors does not apply because Intervenor-21 Defendants’ interests are not “identical to those of an existing party,” even though the 22 ultimate goal may be the same. Berger, 597 U.S. at 196 (emphasis added). The Ninth 23 Circuit has repeatedly held that intervention is appropriate when the intervenor and the 24 government “have distinct interests and objectives,” even if their ultimate goal in the 25
26
27

1 litigation is the same. Citizens for Balanced Use, 647 F.3d at 899; see also Sw. Ctr. for 2 Biological Diversity, 268 F.3d at 819.

3 Second, Defendants are election administrators with their own objectives and 4 obligations that cause their interests to diverge from those of Proposed Intervenor-
5 Defendants, who are solely focused on their members' voting rights. See Berger, 597 6 U.S. at 195. For example, Defendants are obligated to undertake reasonable efforts to 7 remove ineligible voters from their voter registration rolls. See 52 U.S.C. § 21083.
8 Defendants must also balance separate interests, including state and municipal 9 budgetary concerns, administrative constraints, litigation costs, criminal liability 10 exposure, and public opinion. And Defendants may not be able to articulate specific 11 harms to voters or offer zealous protection of Californians' right to vote in the same 12 way that LULAC and NAACP could. Conversely, LULAC and NAACP have no 13 potentially competing objectives, as they are only interested in protecting California 14 voters' and their members' ability to engage in meaningful political participation, 15 including casting a ballot and having that ballot counted alongside the ballots of other 16 eligible California voters. See supra Section I.B.

17 Finally, Defendants are uniquely susceptible to threats of federal coercion that do 18 not implicate LULAC or NAACP. The Federal Government's lawsuit raises the 19 possibility that it may later pursue criminal investigation and prosecution if Defendants 20 do not comply with their demands. The Complaint expressly alleges that persons may 21 be found "in violation of federal law for aiding and abetting, or otherwise facilitating, 22 the federal crime of noncitizen voting." Compl. ¶ 19, ECF No. 1. The Complaint further 23 alleges that "California's actions thus knowingly facilitate unlawful voting." Id. ¶ 59.
24 The Complaint immediately follows that allegation with a claim that they actively 25 investigate and prosecute crimes related to illegal voting. Id. ¶ 60. These thinly veiled 26 threats of criminal prosecution against Defendants echo more express public claims by 27 DHS Secretary Mullin that criminal prosecutions would be directed to election officials

1 who did not cooperate with DHS's directives to scrub voter rolls.⁵ Secretary Mullin also 2 threatened to withhold federal funding from states that did not cooperate with DHS.⁶
 3 Defendants are uniquely exposed to the coercive pressures of potential criminal liability
 4 and deprivation of federal funds. By contrast, LULAC's and NAACP's interests, 5 arguments, and litigating positions are not subject to those pressures and can fully and 6 zealously defend the rights of their members and constituents.

7 II. In the alternative, LULAC and NAACP should be permitted to intervene
 8 under Rule 24(b).

9 Even if the Court determines that LULAC and NAACP do not have a right to 10 intervene under Rule 24(a), it should permit intervention under Rule 24(b) for three 11 reasons: (1) LULAC and NAACP raise defenses that share common questions of law 12 and fact with this matter; (2) LULAC and NAACP will help fully develop the facts of 13 the case; and (3) their intervention will not unduly delay or prejudice the litigation.

14 The defenses LULAC and NAACP intend to raise present common questions of 15 law and fact because they directly engage with and contest the Federal Government's 16 ability to state a claim and prove any lawful entitlement to the relief sought. See Ex. D, 17 Proposed Answer. For example, LULAC and NAACP fundamentally dispute the 18 Federal Government's legal theories and intend to show that its single claim and relief 19 sought are inconsistent with the U.S. Constitution and federal law. Id. at 11-12. Further, 20 LULAC and NAACP are uniquely positioned to appraise the Court about critical factual 21 and legal questions. LULAC and NAACP have decades of experience working to 22 safeguard democracy, advocate for voters, and protect their rights to participate in the 23 electoral process. Further, LULAC and NAACP are more directly engaged with 24

25 ⁵ Steven Portnoy et al., Mullin threatens to withhold aid from states that don't comply
 26 with DHS election directives, ABC News (July 17, 2026), https://perma.cc/AL3Y-
 27 QX9H.

28 ⁶ Id.

individual voters than Defendants, which puts them in a better position to provide the Court with factual information concerning how the Federal Government's claims and requested relief will affect voters. Finally, LULAC and NAACP are involved in related litigation over the Federal Government's (mis)use of federal databases for list maintenance and are well-appraised of relevant legal issues and the status of related proceedings. See generally NAACP v. Trump, No. 26-cv-01151 (D.D.C. 2026); LULAC v. Nelson, No. 26-cv-00729 (W.D. Tex. 2026). Rule 24(b) counsels in favor of permissive intervention in circumstances where "the applicants may be helpful in fully developing the case[.]" Dagget v. Comm'n on Governmental Ethics & Election Pracs., 172 F.3d 104, 113 (1st Cir. 1999). Given that "Rule 24(b) should be construed liberally," the Court should permit Proposed Intervenor-Defendants' voice to be heard in this matter. Animal Prot. Inst. v. Martin, 241 F.R.D. 66, 68 (D. Me. 2007) (citation omitted). LULAC and NAACP will neither delay nor prejudice the litigation and will abide by the schedule set by the Court.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated, this Court should grant LULAC's and NAACP's motion to intervene as a matter of right under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 24(a) or, in the alternative, should grant permissive intervention under Rule 24(b).
